BE it remembered, that on the sixteenth day of September, in the thirty second year of the Independence of the United States of America, John Low, of the said district, hath deposited in this office the title of a book, the right whereof he claims as author, in the words following, to wit :

THE FOLLOWING IS A REVIEW OF THE WORK,
FROM THE MEDICAL REPOSITORY, NO. XLI.

Topographical Information concerning the City of New-York.

“An Alphabetical Table of the situation and extent of the different Streets, Roads, Lanes, Wharves, Piers, Slips, and Basons, as well as of the Public Buildings, has been lately published, in a convenient pamphlet form, by Mr. JOHN LOW. This has been examined by the Street-Commissioner, and is the best description of those parts of the city, in its present enlarged and growing condition. This publication will be highly serviceable to the inhabitants, and more especially to strangers, by giving them, in an easy manner, a correct idea of the city of New-York.”

ADVERTISEMENT.

IN consequence of the frequent inquiries made by the citizen, as well as the stranger, for many of the new streets, and the want of a thorough knowledge of them by the inhabitants in general, has induced the Publisher to present to the public the following account. As a great many new streets have been laid out, and many of the former names altered, it is presumed the following table will be found useful, and worthy of attention.

All the streets marked thus * generally, have no numbers, but few houses, and many of them not yet opened, and are by a late act of the Corporation liable to be altered, as to their situation and boundaries.

For the more easy accommodation of the stranger, the streets from Grand-street, Bowery Road, Broad-Way and Greenwich-street, are designated by 1st, 2d, 3d, &c. turning to the right or left, and the parallels in which they run mentioned; for instance to find Beaver-lane, it is the first turning from the Battery on the left in Broad-Way, Beaver-street the first on the right, &c. East and Harriot-street runs along from Corlears-Hook, up the East-river, as West does the North-river ; making the East and West boundary of the city, as South-street does the South. The different Piers from White-hall Dock, are by the Corporation intended to be numbered, begining at White-hall, and so on towards Corlears-Hook.

In this edition it was thought proper to give the names and situation of the Public Buildings, as they are not correctly mentioned in any other publication. As this table has been inspected by the Street Commissioner, it may be presumed correct.

JOHN LOW.

 As there are but few houses on what is called the Commons, and those generally inhabited by those whose business is done in the city, we have thought it improper to extend this Table farther at present, than Bank-street on the west, and Spruce-street on the east, according to the Corporation map.

BATTERY PARK, This is the most beautiful walk in the United States, and can be exceeded but by few in the world, altho it is acknowledged it is not ornamented with dead Images, yet when the weather will permit, living ones beautiful for their comeliness as well as their virtues may be frequently seen, breathing the fresh gale in the hottest of weather, from this walk can be viewed the Narrows and Light-house, also six Islands, part of the State of New-Jersey, and one of the first harbours in the world, it is bounded on the north by Market-st. and on the east by State-st.

On this spot was the desirable scene of the British, taking their last look of a country, made free, and independent, by a long & severe struggle with them for liberty, but which was gloriously obtained; here the eye of gratitude to heaven and to the venerable worthies who fought their battles glanced with joy, here the venerable Washington with that dignity and honor which at once ennobles the man and the soldier, saw with pleasure the well earned fruits of his labour; on this spot as on a summit, he was crowned with glory and honour, by the brightest rays of the sun, and the applause and affection of a free and Independent people. ✓

The progressive state of Population in the respective Wards, will appear from the following Table.

WARDS.	Census Feb. 4, 1806.	Census Dec. 1, 1807.	Increase in one year & 10 months.
First.....	7,679	7,954	275

Totals.	75,770	83,530	7,760.

The decrease of Slavery in this City, appears as follows :

Slaves	Male	Female	Total.
1806.	818	1,230	2,048
1807.	658	1,118	1,776

Decrease 272

The following Table exhibits the population of this City, as taken at different periods.

Periods.	Inhabitants.
1697 - - - -	4,302
1756 - - - -	*15,000
1771 - - - -	21,863
1786 - - - -	23,614
1791 - - - -	33,131
1801 - - - -	60,489
1806 - - - -	75,770
1807 - - - -	83,530

By which it appears, that our population has more than tripled from 1786 to 1805, a period of twenty years.

Should the progress of increase continue at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, the population of this City in 1855 will amount to 705,650, a rate exceeding the doubling of our number every twenty years, during the period of a Century.

J. P.

Smith's History of New-York, Lon. Ed. 4to. 1757, page 96.*

The following Statistical calculations are from the Daily Advertiser of 1806, as illustrative of the census published this year.

By the enumeration of the inhabitants of this city, recently published, the progress of population for the last five years appears to be at the rate of 25 per cent. Should our city continue to increase in the same proportion during the present century, the aggregate number, at its close, will far exceed that of any other city in the old world, Pekin not excepted: as will appear from the following table.

Progress of population in the city of New-York, computed at 25 per cent, every 5 years.

1805	-	-	75,770
1810	-	-	94,715
1815	-	-	110,390
1820	-	-	147,987
1825	-	-	184,903
1830	-	-	231,228
1835	-	-	289,035
1840	-	-	361,293
1845	-	-	451,616
1850	-	-	564,520
1855	-	-	705,650
1860	-	-	882,062
1865	-	-	1,102,577
1870	-	-	1,378,221
1875	-	-	1,722,776
1880	-	-	2,153,470

1885	-	-	2,691,837
1890	-	-	3,364,796
1895	-	-	4,205,995
1900	-	-	5,257,493

From this table it appears, that the population of this city, sixty years hence, will considerably exceed the reputed population of the cities of Paris and London. Cities and nations, however, like individuals, experience their rise, progress, and decline. It is hardly probable that New-York will be so highly favoured as to prove an exception. Wars, pestilence, and political convulsions, must be our lot, and be taken into calculation. With every allowance, however, for the "numerous ills which flesh is heir to," from our advantageous maritime situation, and the increase of agriculture and commerce, our numbers will in all probability, at the end of this century, exceed those of any other city in the world, Pekin not excepted.

From the data here furnished, the physician, the politician, the financier, and above all the speculator in town-lots, (a subject, to our shame be it spoken, which absorbs every generous passion) may draw various and interesting inferences.

Against the monopoly of public property by the rich, the Corporation ought to have a very jealous eye. As that body has the exclusive right of disposing of what is called the Commons, it would be well for them to encourage the industrious Mechanic, as well as the more opulent to share in the scheme of population, by purchase, or long leases of small lots for the purpose of building on. Such care would not only increase the population, but without the aid of the public purse, ensure an assylum to the exile, in time of terror of the Yellow Fever, if ever such should again visit this growing city.
